

Willott Kingston Smith Seminar – London, October 2007

“People, Property and PR”, given by Nick Cook, Haywards

A select group of PR and media businesses attended a short seminar given by Nick Cook. The session set out to identify the key issues facing London based businesses in the immediate future and how their property could be used to increase profits and productivity.

The seminar gave senior directors and owners the chance to explore their options and understand ways in which they can manage their property contracts to minimise risk and maximise profitability.

If you would like to discuss how these issues may effect your business, then please contact Nick Cook on 01494 488 493.
